

Interest Only Conversion or Extension Fact Sheet.

Process

Borrowers can apply to convert their existing principal and interest repayments to interest only or extend an existing interest only period. At the end of the interest only period repayments will convert to principal and interest over the remaining loan term.

Note: Borrowers cannot request to convert from principal and interest to interest only within the first 12 months from the settlement date. Similarly, borrowers assessed for a part Interest Only Period will not be permitted to extend the Interest Only Period for 12 months from the settlement date. You cannot convert to interest only or extend an interest only period if the loan is in arrears or within a fixed rate period.

Please note: Interest rates will be higher during any interest only period. Also, because the amount you have borrowed will need to be paid back in a shorter time frame once the interest only period has ended, the principal and interest repayments that will apply after the interest only period ends will be higher than if you had remained on principal and interest repayments. The longer the interest only period, the larger the increase in repayments will be.

Maximum Allowed Interest Only Periods

Interest only period must be in whole years e.g. 1 year, 2 years.

- Maximum Interest Only period for an Owner Occupied Loan is 5 years.
- Maximum Interest Only period for an Investment Loan is 10 years.

Note: Maximum Interest Only periods listed above are inclusive of any IO periods for construction. These are the maximum period available and are only available dependant on your financial situation, and on your particular RAMS home loan terms and conditions.

LVR restrictions also apply to loans converting to or extending an interest only period.

Credit Assessment

The request to convert to interest only payments or extend an interest only period is assessed using the RAMS responsible lending principles. Amongst other things, these take into consideration all borrowers' allowable income against all outgoings and reasonable living expenses to assess that they will be able to repay their loan within the approved loan term.
